Another Talking Brush: Harvey Bradley studied silversmithing at Canterbury College of Art. He left Horsey with ATD in 1966 to start a long career in teaching and pottery. An early interest in Kandinsky shaped teaching ideas whilst the oriental/classical styles of the Leach dynasty influenced the pottery. Recently, searching for new expression, these two strands have come together in simple bowl forms and expressive brushwork; reminiscent of musical chords and variations- not quite synaesthesia but perhaps a close relative to it. The personal language is evolving as new brush and jazz rhythms suggest their unique possibilities. Harvey's pots are thrown and turned on a Leach style kick wheel.

Lunch. Bring your own, or join in with the 'pot luck lunch'. Bring a plate of food to share, enough for four portions, either savoury, salad or cake, put your contribution on the table when you arrive. Cold food only please. We still need volunteers to take the cling film etc. off shortly before lunch and to set up the urns and cups for tea and coffee (so people can help themselves). Cakes will still be served at teatime. In the spirit of preventing unnecessary land fill and washing up please bring your own mug. Queries about lunches, please contact Trudy at email <mailto:trudy6218@gmail.com>
